Customer Reviews

Dad is out on the rink giving a few hockey hints. The helmet is on, Dad helped with those shoulder pads, and those hands are on the stick ready to learn and play. It's time to drop the puck because the game will start soon. "In my hand I hold my stick" / watch me zoom, I'm crazy quick! / To my friend I pass the puck" / we'll score a goal, with any luck. • The players are clustered around the goal. Will anyone score? That goalie is really good and he's down on the ice for the save. He's really got a lot of protective equipment on him. It's going to be hard to score with him in front of the net. "Captain Hayley leads the way / for girls who really love to play. / I wish that I were on her team, / to follow my Olympic dream. • For six-year-olds, they're pretty good and they learn by watching the pros. They all love hockey, do you? This is a great little board book for the youngest hockey fans. Not all of the future hockey stars who take a look at this book will be able to read, but it's perfect for little hands to hold as someone else reads to them. The rhyming scheme is excellent and doesn't miss a beat. This book would be perfect for someone to read during circle or story time, especially by someone who has an expressive voice. There are full-color, full-page photographs of young hockey players on every other page. A fun little book young children will love! This book courtesy of the publisher.
